Overview

Sedona Rose is a Seattle-based singer-songwriter and performer offering two distinct, highly bookable live experiences: an intimate Solo Acoustic set and a high-energy Full Band show with Sedona Rose & the Thorns. From heartfelt originals to crowd-pleasing hits, Sedona's performances are polished, engaging, and tailored to the venue and audience.

Short Bio

Sedona Rose is a Washington State-based singer-songwriter and self-taught multi-instrumentalist whose music blends pop, rock, and folk influences. She began writing original songs at 17 under the mentorship of Pat Monahan of the Grammy Award-winning band Train, and has since performed on stage with Train across the world. Sedona has been featured multiple times on Train's Sail Across the Sun music cruise and continues to perform extensively as a solo artist and with her band in the Seattle area.

Full Bio

Sedona Rose is a Seattle-based singer-songwriter known for her engaging live performances, strong vocals, and relatable songwriting. A self-taught musician on drums, piano, and guitar, Sedona began writing original music in her teens and quickly found encouragement and mentorship from Pat Monahan, lead singer of Train.

Since then, Sedona has performed on stages across the country, sharing the stage with Train and appearing as a featured solo artist aboard Train's Sail Across the Sun cruise on multiple occasions. She studied music at the University of Washington and, after graduating, began touring throughout the western United States, performing at venues across Washington, California, Colorado, Nevada, and Idaho, with frequent appearances in the Napa Valley and San Francisco Bay Area.

Sedona fronts her full band Sedona Rose & the Thorns, a tight-knit group of musicians delivering both original music and highly polished, crowd-focused performances. In addition to her original project, Sedona is also a member of 13 Til Midnight, a Taylor Swift tribute band, further showcasing her versatility and stage experience.
